

Organ donation online questionnaire

Welcome to the survey and thank you for agreeing to take part.

The survey is about health and will take around 20 minutes to complete, depending on the answers you give.

We are interested in your views on some issues that some people can find sensitive. However, any and all information you can give will be extremely helpful so please do tell us all that you can. There are no right or wrong answers - it is what you think and feel personally that is most important and all the information you give in this study will be kept confidential, with your views mixed in with others.

We would like to begin by asking you a few questions about yourself as there is a particular target audience in mind for this survey. Please note that we appreciate everyone's intention to participate in the survey and your time and interest to take part has been noted.

Intro	This survey is about organ donation and what people think about issues related to this. Organ donation is the giving of organs to someone else who needs a healthy organ. In this survey, we will be thinking about donating organs after death, rather than living donations (e.g. where someone donates one of their kidneys to someone who needs one).

INTRO	The NHS Organ Donor Register is a confidential, computerised database which holds the wishes of people who have decided that they would like to be an organ donor after their death. It can be quickly accessed to see whether an individual has registered a willingness to be an organ donor. Putting your name on the register demonstrates your consent to the use of your organs for transplantation.

Respondent instruction CODE A	Please select one answer only  To be an organ donor, you have to donate all of your organs

B	Fewer than 5000 people each year die in circumstances where they can donate their organs
C	Fewer than 1500 people each year donate their organs
D	People who have donated their organs can't be viewed after death or have an open casket
E	If you have an organ donor card then you are definitely on the NHS Organ Donor Register
F	There is an upper age limit of 60 for donating organs
G	People from Black or Minority Ethnic Groups are up to three times more likely to need an organ transplant
H	90% of people agree to their family member's/ close friend's organs being donated when they're asked to give consent
I	Most people in the UK are registered on the NHS Organ Donor Register
J	In the UK, 1000 people each year - that's three a day - will die because there are not enough organs available
K	If you're on the NHS Organ Donor Register and your organs are not suitable for use in a transplant, they will automatically be used for medical research instead

1	FALSE - You can specify which organs you wish to donate and can choose whether you would prefer to donate all of them or a select number
2	TRUE

3	TRUE
4	FALSE - Organs are removed with the greatest care and respect and afterwards the surgical incision is closed and dressed in the normal way. Arrangements for viewing the body after donation are the same as after any death
5	FALSE - Before the NHS Organ Donor Register was introduced, organ donor cards were widely available for people to obtain as a sign that they wanted to be an organ donor, but was not part of a formal database. Donor cards are now only issued when a person has joined the register. Not everyone on the register will have a new card and not everyone carrying an old card will be on the register
6	FALSE - It is the person's physical condition, not age, which is the deciding factor about organ donation. Organs from people in their 70s and 80s have been transplanted successfully
7	TRUE
8	FALSE - 55% of people who are asked actually agree to their family member/ close friend's organs being donated (although this increases to 90% if their close friend/ relative is on the NHS Organ Donor Register and they've discussed their wishes)
9	FALSE - Only around 30% are on the NHS Organ Donor Register
10	TRUE
11	FALSE - Organs that cannot be used for transplant will only be used for medical or scientific research purposes if specific permission has been obtained from their close family and/ or friends.

1	You can specify which organs you wish to donate and can choose whether you would prefer to donate all of them or a select number
2	Even though over half a million people die every year in the UK, fewer than 5000 die in circumstances where they would be able to donate their organs
3	Due to factors such as family members/ close friends not agreeing to organ donation, fewer than 1500 people each year actually donate their organs
4	Arrangements for viewing the body after donation are the same as after any death
5	Not everyone on the register will have a new card and not everyone carrying an old card will be on the register
6	It is the person's physical condition, not age, which is the deciding factor about organ donation. Organs from people in their 70s and 80s have been transplanted successfully
7	People from Black or Minority Ethnic Groups are up to three times more likely to need an organ transplant
8	55% of families who are asked actually agree to the organs of those closest to them being donated (although this increases to 90% if their family member/ close friend is on the NHS Organ Donor Register and they've discussed their wishes)
9	Only around 30% are on the NHS Organ Donor Register
10	There are currently more than 10,000 people in the UK who need a transplant, and around 1000 people each year die waiting for an organ
11	Organs that cannot be used for transplant will only be used for medical or scientific research purposes if specific permission has been obtained from those closest to them.

What do you think about the idea of re-introducing these cards?
Respondent instruction CODE	Please select one answer only
1	It would encourage donation if people could just carry a card rather than joining the register
2	It would encourage more donation but they should also have to join the register
3	I don't think it will make much difference to organ donation rates
